BIENVENUE | WELCOME!

Bienvenue au congrès annuel de la SCAE 2017

au magnifique Montréal historique. Nous avons plus de 150 participants. Ce congrès offre une sélection stimulante de sessions et d'événements spéciaux. Pour la première fois, nous organisons un concours de premier cycle, dédiée au professeur David Sparling. Nous organisons également un concours de papier pour des étudiants diplômés. Prévoyez d'assister à un ou plusieurs d'entre eux à l'appui des leaders et chercheurs de la prochaine génération. Vous ne voudriez pas manquer le discours d'ouverture présentée par Bruno Larue, nouvellement conféré le titre de Fellow de la SCAE cette année, ou la séance plénière avec les discours du président et du Fellow et la réunion d'affaires annuelle. Le congrès annuel se termine avec un atelier d'apprentissage gratuit (aux membres de la SCAE) sur l'économie expérimentale, organisé par l'ancien président de la CAES, Maurice Doyon. J'espère vous voir lors du banquet des prix (inclus dans le prix de votre inscription). Profitez d'un délicieux repas, faites d'excellentes conversations tout en félicitant les gagnants de cette année !

Welcome to the 2017 CAES annual meeting in beautiful and historic Montreal. We have over 150 participants. This meeting offers a stimulating selection of sessions and special events. For the first time, we are hosting an undergraduate business case competition, aptly dedicated to Professor David Sparling. We are also hosting a graduate student paper competition. Plan to attend one or more of these in support of the next generation leaders and researcher. You will not want to miss the keynote address presented by 2017 CAES Fellow Bruno Larue, or the CAES Plenary session on Monday morning, featuring the Presidential and Fellows addresses and Annual Business Meeting. The annual meeting wraps up with a free (to CAES members) learning workshop on experimental economics, hosted by former CAES president Maurice Doyon. I look forward to seeing you all at this year's awards banquet (included in the price of your registration). Enjoy a delicious meal, engage in great conversation and congratulate this year's winners!

DISCOURS D'OUVERTURE | KEYNOTE ADDRESS

Economic Integration Reconsidered

Bruno Larue, Université Laval

Dimanche, 18 juin | Sunday, June 18, 17:30–18:30, Opus 2

L'intégration économique est remise en question partout dans le monde. Dans plusieurs pays européens, on se questionne sur les mérites de la zone Euro et même sur l'accord de libre-échange avec le Canada. Les États-Unis se sont retirés du partenariat transpacifique et ont menacé de mettre fin à l'accord de libre-échange nord-américain. L'Organisation Mondiale du Commerce est paralysée depuis plusieurs années dans ses efforts pour finaliser le cycle de Doha. Pourquoi le citoyen ordinaire est-il si sceptique par rapport à l'intégration économique? Quelles sont les implications pour le Canada et son industrie agroalimentaire?

Economic integration is being reconsidered all over the world. Europeans have been questioning the merits of their currency union, their common market and even their free-trade agreement with Canada. The United States withdrew from the 12-country Trans-Pacific Partnership and has threatened to withdraw from the North American Free Trade Agreement. The World Trade Organization has been paralyzed for years in its quest to finalize the Doha Round. Why is the general public increasingly skeptical about economic integration? What are the implications for Canada and its agri-food industry?

DISCOURS DU PRÉSIDENT | PRESIDENTIAL ADDRESS

Evaluation of Government Agri-Environmental Programs

Peter Boxall, University of Alberta

Lundi, 19 juin | Monday, June 19, 8:00 – 10:00, Opus 2

Ce discours reflète à la nécessité d'évaluer les éléments de la programmation agroenvironnementale « Growing Forward ». Cela implique en grande partie les éléments de financement qui se concentrent sur l'intendance à la ferme et l'adoption de pratiques de gestion bénéfiques. Après avoir présenté les différents éléments du programme et les concepts, le cas de l'Alberta est utilisé pour illustrer les questions concernant l'efficacité de ces programmes. Dans ce voyage, plusieurs problèmes de données sont découverts qui doivent être abordés avant que l'évaluation ne soit complétée.

This talk reflects on the need to evaluate the Growing Forward elements of agri-environmental programming. This largely involves the funding elements which focus on on-farm stewardship and the adoption of beneficial management practices. After introducing the various program elements and the concepts the case of Alberta is utilized to illustrate questions regarding the effectiveness of these programs. In this journey, various data issues are uncovered which need to be addressed before evaluation can be completed.

DISCOURS DU FELLOW | FELLOWS ADDRESS

The Growing Heterogeneity in the Farm Sector and its Implications

Alfons Weersink, University of Guelph

Lundi, 19 juin | Monday, June 19, 8:00 – 10:00, Opus 2

Cette discussion examinera les changements dans la structure du secteur agricole, les raisons des changements et les implications politiques.

This talk will examine the changes in the structure of the farm sector, reasons for the changes, and the policy implications.

CONCOURS DE CAS D'AFFAIRES

DAVID SPARLING BUSINESS CASE COMPETITION

Venez voir la prochaine génération de chefs d'entreprise dans l'industrie agroalimentaire ! Les équipes de premier cycle développent une solution créative et pratique à un complexe, réels et présentent leurs résultats à un panel de juges.

Ce concours est dédié à la mémoire de David Sparling, ancien professeur du département d'économie agricole (Université de Guelph), du Collège des affaires et de l'économie (Université de Guelph) et du Ivey Business School (Western University). Maître de la méthode de cas d'affaires, David Sparling était un enseignant exceptionnel en raison de sa passion pour son sujet et de son véritable intérêt pour ses étudiants. Le concours donne l'occasion de se rappeler comment le professeur David Sparling a touché la vie de chacun et de ses étudiants.

Watch the next generation of business leaders in the agri-food industry! Undergraduate teams develop a creative, practical solution to a complex, real-and present their findings to a panel of judges. Concerto

This competition is dedicated to the memory of David Sparling, a former Professor in the Department of Agricultural Economics (University of Guelph), the College of Business and Economics (University of Guelph), and the Ivey Business School (Western University). A master of the case method, David Sparling was an outstanding teacher because of his passion for his subject and genuine interest in his students. This competition is an opportunity to remember how Professor David Sparling touched the lives of everyone and each of his students.

Remerciement spécial aux commanditaires et juges !
Special thanks to the sponsors and judges!

ATELIER D'APPRENTISSAGE | LEARNING WORKSHOP

Survey Designs based on Experimental Economics to Assess Consumers' Preferences: Do's and Don'ts

Hôte | Host: Maurice Doyon, Université Laval

Mercredi, 21 juin | Wednesday, June 21, 08:30 — 13:30, Concerto

Les méthodes de préférence déclarées sont largement utilisées par les spécialistes du marketing, et des économistes des ressources et économie appliquée pour estimer la volonté de payer (WTP) pour les biens environnementaux ou les biens privés, tels que des produits nouveaux ou améliorés ou des nouveautés alimentaires. La forme la plus simple est les questions ouvertes sur la WTP du répondant pour une bonne ou une question fermée, à choix multiple ou des enquêtes d'évaluation des contingents plus élaborées.

La validité des méthodes de préférence déclarées, plus spécifiquement leur nature hypothétique, a généré une littérature sur les biais hypothétiques et différents outils ont tenté de corriger le biais hypothétique en utilisant des méthodes d'étalonnage ex post et ex ante, avec un succès limité. Cet atelier présentera, en utilisant la littérature et les expériences courtes, le contexte et la distinction du biais hypothétique pour les biens publics et privés, ainsi que des options pour améliorer les méthodes de préférence déclarées en utilisant des tests de validité pour identifier et attirer l'espoir hypothétique dans le cas de privé et les biens publics.

Les participants devraient apporter : deux billets de $ 5, deux pièces de 2 $ et quatre trimestres, pour un total de 15 $. Vous aurez une chance de gagner de l'argent lors de l'exécution des expériences !

Stated preference methods are widely used by marketers, resource and applied economists to estimate the willingness-to-pay (WTP) for environmental goods or private goods such as new or improved goods or food novelties. The simplest form is open-ended questions about the respondent's WTP for a good or closed-ended, multiple-choice questions or more elaborate contingent valuation surveys.

The validity of stated preference methods, more specifically their hypothetical nature, has generated a large literature on hypothetical bias and different tools have attempted to correct the hypothetical bias using ex post and ex ante calibration methods, with limited success. This workshop will introduce, using the literature and short experiments, the context and distinction of hypothetical bias for public and private goods, as well as discuss options to improve stated preference methods using validity tests to identify and hopefully mitigate hypothetical bias in the case of private and public goods.

Participants should bring: two $5 bills, two $2 coins, and four quarters, for a total of $15. You will have a chance to make money while running the experiments!

Symposium organisé | Organized Symposium Session 1: An Assessment of Methods: Synergies Between the Analysis of Food Chains, Marketing Margins and Price Transmission

Organized by Ken Nakagawa, Agriculture & Agri-Food Canada

Salle | Room: Tchaikovsky

The session brings together researchers with expertise on price transmission and value-added analysis of food systems. A moderated discussion following between presenters and discussant follows three presentations. Presenters and the discussant are made up of academic and government researchers from Canada and the U.S. The discussant will focus on the strengths and limitations in current IO research methods. The discussant provides observations, synopsis and assessments of the presentations. The session concludes with audience participation through a Q&A during the final part of the session.

Session 2: Focus on Fellows: Thirty Years Since the Brundtland Report (Our Common Future):
What Have We learned and What Has Changed?

Organized and moderated by Kurt Klein, University of Lethbridge

Salle | Room: Concerto

This session showcases some of the lifetime efforts by Fellows of the CAES. As Fellows, we are trying to assemble discussion papers on economic policy issues that have been addressed by Fellows over several years to provide background and detail on the causes and implications of the changes over the past decades. These papers are intended to serve as teaching materials in our faculties, as well as documentation on how and why significant policy changes have been brought about. Equally, the papers can shed light on the persistence of some policies and approaches in Canada in the face of pressures for change.

Session 3: Agricultural Commodity Markets Make Good Research - Really!

Organized and moderated by Janelle Mann,
University of Manitoba
Salle | Room: Tchaikovsky

This session will showcase leading researchers of commodity markets and is geared toward academics, graduate students, and industry partners who are interested of agricultural commodity prices and price volatility. Interest from industry and academia of agricultural commodity markets is increasing, bringing with it new opportunities to present research at non-agricultural economics conferences and publish in non-agricultural economics journals. The plan for the organized symposium is to have a "light" panel discussion similar to a talk show. Dr. Janelle Mann will act as the 'host' and facilitate discussion by asking the participants questions such as "What attracts you to study agricultural commodity markets?", "What research are you currently working on?", "How can an undergraduate/graduate student prepare themselves to study agricultural commodity prices?", "Do you invest in agricultural commodity markets", and "What is the most interesting development within your field in the past five years."

Panel: James Rude, University of Alberta
Charles Grant, University of Manitoba
Julieta Frank, University of Manitoba

Session 4: Agricultural Innovation in Canada
Organized by Jean-François Frenette, Agriculture and Agri-Food Canada
Salle | Room: Concerto

This session will focus on the key role that innovation and technology adoption plays in helping farmers remain profitable, competitive and sustainable. Agriculture and Agri-Food Canada (AAFC) innovation programs through the Growing Forward 2 policy framework exist to accelerate the development and adoption of innovation in the agriculture sector. Some types of innovations penetrate markets quickly (e.g. herbicide resistant canola) whereas other innovations take longer to convince farmers to adopt (e.g. no-till seeding). Conversely, farmers differ in their general adoption rates of innovations; some are early adopters while others wait until the innovations are tried and tested before adopting themselves. Some of the questions that will be addressed include: What makes a farm operator decide to adopt on-farm innovation? What types of innovations have the biggest impact on farm business financial returns? What are the next generation of farmers considering in terms of innovations? These are just some of the questions we wish to address with this organized symposium.

Session 5: Climate Change, Crop Yield Volatility and Crop Insurance Participation

Organized by Jun Zhao and Li Xue, Agriculture and Agri-Food Canada

Salle | Room: Tchaikovsky

This session consists of three presentations, focusing on the approach to aggregation of weather data and the impact of climate change on crop yield and farmers' participation in crop insurance. The presentations and discussions will contribute to our understanding of the complex relationships among changing climate, crop yield and crop insurance participation. The findings will inform the policy and programs for the climate change adaptation.

Session 6: Supply and Demand of Data for Economic and Policy Analyses in Agriculture and Agri-Food Innovations: Insights from Practitioners
Organized by Deepanandra Herath and Samuel Bonti-Ankomah, Agriculture and Agri-Food Canada
Salle | Room: Concerto

This symposium will provide a discussion surrounding the providers and users of data for analytical work in agriculture and agri-food innovations, with the objective of assessing the gaps in available data for analytical work in innovation in both the primary agriculture and food processing sectors. The symposium intends to create a dialogue among the data providers, such as Statistics Canada, and the users including Agriculture and Agri-Food Canada, and the academic and industry stakeholders. It is hoped that the interactions among the participants will identify appropriate strategies to address gaps in existing innovation data.
